Uber-Hamster is the last of the Lords of the Elephant Ear Plant, a bloodline of HAMstar rodents who bite the mother of The Boy just before the Leaving, and were flung into the large pot of an Elephant Ear Plant in The Boy's room. Known as the LO-TEEP, these hamsters were renowned for playing barbarian feral space chinchillas in ChinKILA 3010, and often sought out to help get through killer modules such as Tomb of Hamsters and QueenCat of the Demonpillow Pits.

However, the LO-TEEP have fallen far from their noble roots, and in past generations have held on to their status as Leet ChinKila 3010 players only through cheating. Uber Hamster was trained to cheat from a young age, but always rejected it as not "true" to the art of feral chinchilla roleplaying. However, as his entire family, and clan, were killed in the Great Vacuuming of 2098, Uber Hamster realizes his petty morals may not be able to help him attract a fem-ster, so he can rebuild the mighty Lo-TEEP clan. Uber Hamster has yet to cheat on a regulation champion game of ChinKILA 3010, but knows it is only a matter of time before circumstances tip his hand. Also, he has a wicked-cool lightsaber that has a black blade that illuminates everything like a black light.

*Before each session, the player must draw vertical lines between each skill name, running the length of the character sheet. Then, chinchilla hair, representing chinchilla hair recovered from satchels in-game, are dropped on the sheet. Every column that gets a tuft counts as one skill allocation for that game sessions. Lines are redrawn at the beginning of each game.
